SEMINAR ON INTEGRITY IN MAJOR-INFRASTRUCTURE PROJECTS

Background

Major-infrastructure projects involve substantial capital and multiple counterparts, making them inherently susceptible to corruption risks. Addressing these challenges requires robust enforcement action through operational investigation and legal cooperation.

As the host and main organiser of the seminar, the Malaysian Anti-Corruption Commission (MACC) in collaboration with the International Association of Anti-Corruption Authorities (IAACA) and strategic partners including the Independent Commission Against Corruption, Hong Kong, China (ICAC), remains committed to strengthening integrity, combating corruption, and fostering international collaboration, particularly in addressing corruption risks in major-infrastructure projects.

The seminar will convene experts and practitioners from diverse jurisdictions to exchange practical experiences, investigative approaches, preventive strategies, and legal perspectives related to corruption in complex construction and infrastructure environments. Discussions will also highlight the importance of international cooperation, mutual legal assistance, and cross-border collaboration in addressing sophisticated corruption schemes and safeguarding accountability and integrity in major infrastructure development.

Together, these perspectives provide a comprehensive framework for safeguarding accountability and integrity in major infrastructure development.

Objectives

By the end of this seminar, participants will:

- Learn effective strategies for strengthening investigative capacity to detect irregularities in complex construction environments
- Explore the practical approach of MACC and ICAC to uncovering "red flags" in project management to ensure institutional credibility

- Understand how legal frameworks, including international mutual legal assistance, facilitate bringing criminals to justice
